A dramatic new improvement in literature searching for the social scientist

SOCIAL SCIENCES CITATION INDEX™

If you're a busy professional in the social or behavioral sciences, the Social Sciences Citation Index offers you new and improved solutions to your literature search problems. The new SSCI™ system will help you

... achieve truly interdisciplinary searches which retrieve articles relevant to your subject no matter where they appear in the journal literature.

... retrieve articles while they're still new by providing the most current large-scale coverage available.

... start productive searches immediately even if you have only the name of a key author in the field or a single English word describing the subject.

... perform searches more easily by eliminating your need to know specialized indexing vocabularies.

... locate the most recent published developments on a subject by searching forward in the literature from any significant work on the subject published in the past.

The SSCI is a totally integrated literature search system. Through its unique combination of powerful retrieval techniques—like citation indexing and Permuterm® subject indexing—it gives you quick, easy access to over 70,000 items each year, including:

- every significant editorial item in the world's 1,000 most important social sciences journals
- every item in selected social sciences monographs
- articles on the social sciences selected from 2,000 natural, physical and biomedical sciences journals

For specific examples of how SSCI can improve your literature searches, write to us. We'll be happy to send you our new descriptive booklet and complete subscribing information.

AVAILABILITY AND CONVENIENCE

Musts In Obtaining Information From Periodicals

BUT MAYBE:

Your binding budget has been reduced, making it difficult to bind all the important magazines.

Your staff time is not enough to do an in house binding or economies of doing it yourself only prove false.

Your users find microfilm costs them the hard-copy convenience of working with more than one journal at the same time.

Your number of readers and reader printers pose limitations when demand is heavy.

DON'T GIVE UP YET:

Templok® Storage Binders with their patented locking device can help you keep your magazines together for easy access as well as protect them against loss. Best of all, when materials are removed for binding or discarding, the binders are reuseable.

1974 TEN YEARS
SPRINGER-VERLAG NEW YORK

Now! Fill MAJOR REFERENCE GAPS WITH THESE TITLES FROM EUROPA —distributed in AMERICA by GALE RESEARCH COMPANY

For three years Gale has been distributing in America selected reference works of the distinguished British firm, Europa Publications Limited. The eight titles described below are of international value and reputation and fill serious gaps in the reference collections of American libraries. Most of these titles have been cited favorably in such authoritative guides as American Reference Books Annual and Winchell's Guide to Reference Books. (New editions of Europa titles are jet-freighted from London to Detroit . . . so your patrons can use them while they are at their newest and best.)

AFRICA SOUTH OF THE SAHARA 1974. 4th Edition.

The first part of this survey and reference book is a general introduction to the continent as a whole and deals with African history and the problems of development. Part 2 fully describes all major African regional organizations. Part 3 is comprised of chapters by recognized authorities on each country's physical and social geography, economy, and recent history. Also included are maps, statistical surveys, bibliographies, directory material, calendars, and a who's who. About 1,200 pages. $42.00 (Ready March, 1974)

THE EUROPA YEAR BOOK 1973. 14th Edition.

"Europa Year Book is known for its up-to-date, accurate and comprehensive coverage" (ARBA). Volume 1 deals with 1,500 international organizations and with the countries of Europe, including the USSR and Turkey. Volume 2 covers Africa, the Americas, Asia, and Australasia. For each country, details are given on its recent history, constitution, religions, social welfare, defense, etc. Also included for each is an extensive directory section. With indexes of international organizations and territories. 3,388 pages. 2 vols. $66.00 (In print)

THE FAR EAST AND AUSTRALASIA 1974. 6th Edition.

This annual includes essays by over 50 geographers, historians, and economists covering South Asia . . . South-East Asia . . . East Asia . . . and Australasia and the Pacific Islands. The book also includes a preliminary section containing general introductory features and chapters on regional cooperative organizations. Directory sections and statistical surveys on each country cover its government, judicial system, finance, trade, power, tourism, etc. With 31 maps, an index of territories, a calendar of events, a who's who, a list of research institutes, and a bibliography. About 1,500 pages. $42.00 (Ready April, 1974)

THE INTERNATIONAL DIRECTORY OF COMPUTER AND INFORMATION SYSTEM SERVICES 1974. 3rd Edition.

Concise information about computer services available to outside customers from commercial, educational, and research establishments throughout the world. Listed are the names, addresses, phone numbers, and officers' names, fields of experience, the types of services offered, and the type of computer installation. About 700 pages. $27.00 (Ready April, 1974)

THE INTERNATIONAL WHO'S WHO 1973-74. 37th Edition.

The standard source of biographical information about eminent personalities in every country . . . the only place to find details on persons from the many countries having no national who's who. The 37th Edition contains over 16,000 listings, nearly 900 of them brand new; existing biographies have been revised and updated. xx + 1,879 pages. $39.50 (In print)

THE MIDDLE EAST AND NORTH AFRICA 1973-74. 20th Edition.

Reviews the year's developments in the area and describes physical and social geography, racial and linguistic groupings, religions, resources, etc., of all countries and territories in the region. The chapters are similar in scope and features to those of The Far East and Australasia. With maps, bibliographies, directories, and appendixes. xxiv + 872 pages. $32.00 (In print)

THE WORLD OF LEARNING 1973-74. 24th Edition.

This two-volume work is firmly established as the comprehensive, up-to-date guide to educational, scientific, and cultural organizations all over the world. The first part lists, describes, and gives addresses for over 400 international organizations. Arranged alphabetically by country, the main section gives complete information on universities, colleges, libraries, research institutes, museums, art galleries, and learned societies. With 411-column index. "This is the standard directory on the subject" (ARBA). About 2,000 pages in 2 vols. $50.00 (Ready Feb., 1974)

INTERNATIONAL FOUNDATION DIRECTORY.

A new Europa publication—distributed in the U.S. exclusively by Gale. This is the first guide to the high-interest field of international foundations, trusts, and similar nonprofit institutions.

The Directory provides a comprehensive picture of some 1,000 foundations active in science, medicine, education, social welfare, the arts and humanities, international relations, etc. The entries, arranged by country, supply each institution's name, address, purpose, details of its activities, publications, and officers. About 500 pages. Introduction. $22.00 (Ready April, 1974)

STANDING ORDERS

DICTIONARY CATALOG OF THE SLAVONIC COLLECTION, The Research Libraries of The New York Public Library

SECOND EDITION

The collection of the Slavonic Division of The Research Libraries, The New York Public Library, ranks as a major depository of Baltic and Slavic materials in the Western Hemisphere. This second edition supersedes the original publication of the Slavonic Division catalog by G. K. Hall and Co. in 1959. Since that time the New York Public Library has added 54,000 volumes to its Slavonic collection and the catalog has increased by 216,000 entries. The dictionary catalog now contains approximately 724,000 entries; the collection now houses nearly 200,000 volumes. About 73% of the cards are in the Cyrillic alphabet and the remainder in the Roman alphabet. Traditionally strong in belles-lettres, linguistics, social sciences, folklore, government publications (national and local), translations of the Balto-Slavic literature into English, in serials and periodicals, the collection has in more recent years given increasing attention to science, technology, and economics, particularly primary source materials and research writings. Comprehensive coverage is attempted in bibliography, biography, encyclopedias, directories, heraldry, emigree publications, and Americana.

44 Volumes (10x14)
ISBN: 0-8161-0777-7

Prepublication price: $2,700.00

THE CATALOG OF THE SOCIAL AND BEHAVIORAL SCIENCES MONOGRAPH SECTION OF THE INSTITUTE FOR SEX RESEARCH, Indiana University

Founded by Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey in 1947, the Institute for Sex Research is devoted to basic research in human sexual behavior. With holdings of over 30,000 volumes (approximately 54,000 catalog entries), the Library accumulates material of scientific, historic and aesthetic value related to human sexuality. It also subscribes to journals in the field of psychiatry, psychology and sociology. The books of the behavioral and social sciences section have been classified according to an interdisciplinary scheme and special subject heading list developed to serve the needs of researchers.

OCEANOGRAPHIC INDEX: Organismal Cumulation 1946-1973

Compiled by Dr. Mary Sears of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution. The Organismal Cumulative Index is a working guide to journal articles, monographs, etc., held in the library of the Marine Biological Laboratory and of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution. Although the cumulations span the years 1946-1973, coverage antedates 1946 material and is international in scope. The collection contains references to a large percentage of the articles and books which have come into the well-known Marine Biological Laboratory's library during the past twenty-five years and more. Dr. Sears is currently a senior scientist in the biology department at Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution and was the American editor for the first twenty volumes of Deep-Sea Research, 1953-1973. The Organismal Cumulation, with an estimated 56,200 entries, supplements the earlier Author Cumulation and is an outgrowth of the Subject Cumulation. For convenience and ease of access to the more used portions of the file the two large subdivisions of this catalog are animals and plant and microorganisms. These volumes will primarily serve to assist students and non-specialists in locating references to many subjects that may be called biological oceanography.

THE LIBRARY CATALOG OF THE INSTITUTE OF ISLAMIC STUDIES, McGill University (Montreal)

The Library of the Institute of Islamic Studies contains nearly 75,000 volumes and the largest collection of periodicals in the field in North America. The Library is particularly strong in Islamic religion, theology, philosophy and history with emphases on Ottoman Turkey and the Muslim periods of India and Pakistan. In languages and literature, half of the holdings are in Arabic and English and half in European and Islamic languages, especially Urdu, Turkish and Persian. Area studies cover social, historical and cultural topics with special strengths in the Middle East: Turkey, Iran and North Africa; India and Pakistan. The research value of the collection is augmented by 500 reels of microfilm of rare books and manuscripts.

Twayne's United States Authors Series

Sylvia E. Bowman, Editor

Twayne's United States Authors Series (TUSAS) is a continuing publication program designed to promote an understanding of the American literary and cultural heritage by providing readers and scholars with compact critical studies of important writers and literary movements from colonial times to the present. Created and edited by Chancellor Sylvia E. Bowman of Indiana University, TUSAS will, when completed, include critical studies of every American author who has contributed significantly to our literary and cultural development. Since the series began in 1961, nearly 230 individual studies have been published. Two hundred additional studies are in preparation. TUSAS complements the World and English Authors Series, thus giving full dimension to the Twayne literature program. For a complete description of the entire Twayne program, please write for our latest Catalogue.

the beast and the librarian.

Once upon a time, a librarian adopted a serial. In the beginning it was a thin, innocent-looking animal. But soon it started to multiply at an alarming rate. The more serials there were, the more time, space, and money they demanded for proper care. And gradually, they turned into seemingly uncontrollable beasts.

First, most serials had to be bound. A simple matter when there weren't too many. But a financial nightmare for the growing family.

Then there was storage. As the swelling menagerie usurped more space, the librarian realized how many thousands of dollars the animals devoured — just sitting on the shelves.

And sadly, the beasts were subject to abuse. Patrons scribbled in them, ripped the pages out, and even filched entire volumes. The librarian had to replace the victims — and sometimes paid dearly.

The librarian was in distress, about to be swallowed up by the paper monsters, when who should come to the rescue but MIGHTY MICROFILM!

Gallantly, Microfilm explained how acquiring and keeping serials in microform could tame the animals — and save money, too. Microfilm pointed out that he wasn't expensive, required no binding, made a home in small spaces, and didn't damage easily. "You sound too good to be true," the librarian exclaimed. "Where can I find out more about you?"

And Microfilm advised the librarian to write to Xerox University Microfilms, because they have the largest, most well-rounded serials collection available anywhere in microform. And they can give expert advice on serials management. The librarian got their catalog — converted to Microfilm — and the two of them lived happily ever after.

NATIONAL FACULTY DIRECTORY

1974

Fourth Edition. Two Volumes.
2090 pages. ISBN 0-8103-0651-4.
L.C. #76-114404. $68.50.

Tens of thousands of changes . . . additions . . . deletions . . . amounting to some 25% of the entries have been made in the just-published 1974 edition of The National Faculty Directory, the ONLY comprehensive and frequently-updated source of information on who-is-where in the academic world.

The NFD has been praised by reviewers and users as the most reliable reference book for identifying and locating both full- and part-time faculty members at nearly 3,000 United States and selected Canadian junior colleges, colleges, and universities. The 1974 edition continues this tradition of usefulness.

Each of the approximately 400,000 alphabetical listings gives name, institutional affiliation, department, and full mailing address with zip.

Review the 1974 edition yourself by ordering a copy on free 30-day approval. By placing a standing order now you can be sure that future editions of the highly praised National Faculty Directory will be shipped to you on approval direct from the bindery.

WHAT REVIEWERS HAVE SAID:

RQ: "The National Faculty Directory is the 'who's where' of the academic community. It is for academic personnel what that other Gale reference staple, the Encyclopedia of Associations, is for U.S. organizations . . . NFD provides an extremely comprehensive listing of some 400,000 full- and part-time faculty members at some 3,000 institutions of higher learning. Included, as well, are lecturers, visiting professors, writers in residence, and administrative executives. Naturally, the publisher relies heavily for additions to and revisions of listings (over 100,000 changes have been made in existing listings) on institutions' catalogs, faculty lists, campus directories, and the like. Every academic and large public library should have NFD. Many community libraries will find ample need for it also, and certain business and professional organizations will find it a very useful source."

highly recommended . . . unique and invaluable . . . an essential acquisition . . . most important . . . extremely comprehensive CHOICE: "Clearly, this compilation is one of the most important reference works now available to the higher education academic community. Initially published in 1970 (some 320,000 entries), this is more than an updated edition: it represents a refinement of data gathering procedures (with substantial expansion of coverage), and the resolution of most of the problems inevitable in a work of so large a scope . . . It is unique and an invaluable resource to a multiplicity of users . . . The bibliographical nightmare which is American college/university catalog publication would deter the most stalwart of investigators; yet, the NFD has put it all together . . . An essential acquisition for all academic libraries."

AMERICAN REFERENCE BOOKS ANNUAL: "The editorial staff of Gale Research Company has made a noticeable effort to update most of the listings. . . . The currency of information in the present edition is considerably better than are most mailing lists distributed by some publishers and special mailing houses."

SCIENCE BOOKS: "In this single source it is now possible to locate practically every person in the United States who occupies a full-time or part-time faculty position in any of more than 2,500 [nearly 3,000 in the 1974 edition] colleges and universities. All disciplines, subdisciplines, and interdisciplinary programs are represented. . . . This should prove to be a widely used reference in colleges, universities, public libraries, educational and professional organizations, etc. Highly recommended."
